A BLESSED CHRISTMAS

Shepherds in the fields saw a brilliant star, and knew that night was born the Christ for whom they'd waited. The wise men also saw and followed the starlit path that led to Bethlehem and to the Christ Child.

Gloria In Excelsis Deo

"And when they were come into the house, they saw the young child with Mary his mother, and fell down, and worshipped him; and when they had opened their treasures, they presented unto him gifts; gold, and frankincense, and myrrh."

Superintendents say legislators should delay consolidation

BY DENA BISNETTE

Public school superintendents in the Hancock-West Harrison county area favor postponing the state's proposed consolidation of districts until other requirements of the Education Reform Act of 1982 have been met.

The Mississippi Educational Finance Commission (EFC) has tentatively approved plans that would consolidate the Hancock County School District with the Bay St. Louis Municipal Separate School District.

Also, the Pass Christian District has been notified by the EFC that proposed consolidation plans will annex the district to the Long Beach District.

Hancock County Superintendent Terrell Randolph said he has studied the provisions of the Educational Reform Act relating to consolidation and feels its implementation should be rescheduled.

If the state's Lay Board of Education and the legislature approve the consolidation proposal next month, districts will have to merge by July 1, 1986.

July 1, 1986, is also the deadline for implementing other Educational Reform Act requirements, including kindergarten, ongoing staff development programs, new teacher certification requirements and performance-based accreditation.

"It will take more than one year to do all that," Randolph said.

Districts all over the state are working on their individual staff development programs and other reforms and the reforms vary from district to district. Randolph feels more time is needed to allow districts to merge individual programs.

"If the Legislature does delay consolidation, the Bay St. Louis and Hancock schools can begin working toward merging services such as purchasing and transportation," Randolph added.

Bay St. Louis Superintendent J.D. McCullough agrees with Randolph, saying, "The timing is all wrong." However, McCullough feels that consolidation is also being given higher priority than it should be.

"The most important part of the Education Reform Act is teacher salaries. You can't have quality schools without quality teachers, and it's going to take a pay raise to keep them," he said.

He also said that more is being demanded from teachers while the education reforms are being implemented, since teachers are involved in many of them.

"I wouldn't say I'm against consolidation of the two districts. I feel we can live with it in Hancock County because we have real dedicated people who are interested in the educational welfare of the county, but we have to give it more time," McCullough said.

Both superintendents said they do not anticipate the closing of any of the district's schools. However, Randolph's understanding of the law indicates that both school boards would have to be dissolved and a new board elected under the same district system as the board of supervisors.

The new board, which would take over sometime in 1986, would be in charge of appointing the superintendent, Randolph said.

Pass Christian Superintendent Leroy Lizana, who also believes consolidation is coming too soon, says he has additional reasons to oppose consolidation of districts.

Pass Christian is a municipal separate district like Bay St. Louis, but current EFC plans indicate it

Hancock chamber backs Coast train continuation

The Hancock County Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors has voted to endorse the continuance of the Gulf Coast Limited through Sept. 30, and will assist the Louisiana-Mississippi Rapid Rail Commission in urging the Mississippi Legislature to join.

This action follows the board's meeting Tuesday night, at which the pros and cons of funding the train were addressed by commission representative Delmer Wilcox and Joseph Colson, a local resident who opposes the endorsement.

"The board feels that the Gulf Coast Limited should at least be given an opportunity to continue," said John Mason, Chamber president, "and that a schedule change should also be provided to allow New Orleans visitors to come earlier on Fridays and leave on Monday mornings."

A resolution endorsing the funding of the train will be sent from the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce to state legislators for consideration.

Hancock school district adopts mission statement

BY DENA BISNETTE

In keeping with the requirements of the Educational Reform Act of 1982, the Hancock County School District recently adopted a "mission statement" outlining the district's educational goals.

The mission statement ties in with staff development and the Accountability in Instructional Management (AIM) Program, according to Assistant Superintendent James Pair, a member of the committee responsible for drafting the statement.

Pair said the mission statement alone will not cause any major changes in the district's educational objectives or the way students are taught. However, the programs it ties in with will make improvements in Hancock County and education in Mississippi in general.

The mission statement outlines two main goals and how those goals will be accomplished. The goals include emphasizing basic skills instruction and providing educational programs conducive to cultural, physical, social and moral development.

Six ways of emphasizing basic skills are outlined, including providing enough time for basic skills instruction; using the AIM Program, which outlines instructional objectives, teaching methods and evaluation methods; determining the appropriate curriculum for each student; evaluating student mastery of basic skills; basing decisions on grading, promotion, retention and graduation on student performance; and ensuring that students spend sufficient time in activities contributing to the mastery of basic skills.

The district hopes to provide programs contributing to student development through intensified exposure to fine arts, emphasis of good health habits through physical education and instructional programs and the use of the Assertive Discipline Program.

"This mission statement is something we have always wanted to do," Pair explained. "It also helps involve lay people because not all the people on the committee were school personnel."

The mission statement will change as the district's needs change and may change from year to year, Pair explained. Future changes will probably be based on needs assessments and teacher surveys.

"The mission statement alone won't really change the way we're teaching now," Pair said. "We've always had these objectives, but we're putting them on paper now because the Educational Reform Act requires it for accreditation."

Pair said each district in the state is drafting a mission statement or has adopted one in keeping with the requirement.

Waveland City Council declares continuation of support for Amtrak train

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Waveland Board of Aldermen has again declared its support for continued funding for Amtrak's Gulf Coast Limited.

The Gulf Coast Limited, a passenger train which stops in Waveland, ends its run Jan. 6 if Mississippi does not agree to join other members of the Tri-State Rapid Rail Commission in subsidizing the train.

The Waveland board declared its support for the train shortly after it began service during the New Orleans World's Fair and reaffirmed its position by vote Wednesday after hearing from local residents Delmer Wilcox and Joseph Colson.

Wilcox asked the board to continue contacting local legislators with requests that the state contribute more than $300,000 to the rail commission.

He also said the commission, which consists of Alabama and Louisiana as well as Mississippi, has been working on getting the Gulf Coast Limited's Mobile, Ala., to New Orleans run extended to include Jacksonville, Fla.

If Florida joins the commission, Mississippi will have to pay less to keep the train going, Wilcox said.

Colson, however, contended that the train's ridership has fallen to about three passengers per day boarding at the Waveland stop and feels the train is no longer needed since the fair has closed.

Colson contended that the train is no longer benefitting Waveland.

Mayor John Longo Jr. responded to Colson and Wilcox by reading a letter from Governor Bill Allain, who acknowledged receipt of a letter from the aldermen supporting the continuation of the train.

Longo and Wilcox both feel that keeping the Gulf Coast Limited is essential to the commission's efforts to establish a commuter train service from Ocean Springs to New Orleans with stops in Waveland and other cities along the coast.

"If we lose the Amtrak, they'll say we just can't make anything work down here. It's our last chance to get a commuter train," Longo said.

Colson feels that losing the Amtrak train would not hinder efforts to get a commuter train because Amtrak, under federal law, is not allowed to start commuter lines.

A commuter line would be operated by the commission, Wilcox said.

In other business, the aldermen met with Ray McIntyre, who questioned the board about the procedure used to get a sidewalk variance for a subdivision. McIntyre was advised to refer the matter to the zoning board.

The board also approved advertising for repair of the roof of the city library and moved its next meeting from Jan. 1 to Jan. 2.

FOUR PARTIES IN ONE—A Gala Christmas Party was held on Friday in the Hancock County Room sponsored by Edward Murtagh, tax assessor-tax collector; from left, Ronnie Peterson, sheriff; J.D. Rutherford, circuit clerk; and Mike Necaise, chancery clerk. Holiday foods and decorations for the event were prepared by the office members of the four county officials which were enjoyed by several hundred people. (Staff photo by Ellis Cuevas).

Bay police dispatchers certified

Three dispatchers from the Bay St. Louis Police Department recently completed a three-day workshop at the Louisiana State University Law Enforcement Academy in Baton Rouge.

Gwen Frederick, Leona Fayard and Janis Haynes were among some 140 participants who received certificates of proficiency in police communications upon completion of the training, Bay St. Louis Acting chief Murray Ladner reported.

Correction

In a police story appearing in Thursday's Edition of The Sea Coast Echo, George E. Singleton IV, P.O. Box 215, Lakeshore, was incorrectly listed as George E. Zingerling IV. Singleton was allegedly involved in the burglary of a Bayou Phillip residence.

The Echo regrets the error.

Bay St. Louis obtains loan for sewer project

BY DENA BISNETTE
Through an interest-free loan to Bay St. Louis, the Waveland Regional Wastewater Management District has received some help with a project that will prepare the Bay St. Louis sewage lagoon for linkage with Waveland's sewage treatment plant.

The members of the district board signed acceptance papers Wednesday for the $59,019 loan from the federal Environmental Protection Agency.

The loan, which will be administered by the state Bureau of Pollution Control, will pay 12.5 percent of the cost of the project, with another 12.5 percent being provided by local funding.

The remaining 75 percent will come from a $354,000 EPA grant to the wastewater district.

The loan is actually being made to the wastewater district, but the money is being handed over to the city and will be repaid to the district over the next 20 years with sales tax revenue, said Larry Bennett, mayor of Bay St. Louis and a member of the district board.

The project the loan will help finance is the first phase of a four-phase, $3 million program that will eventually link the lagoon with the Waveland treatment plant and discharge treated effluent at a single point in Edwards Bayou.

The effluent from the lagoon is currently discharged into Watts Bayou, while the Waveland plant discharges into Edwards.

The contract for the project has not yet been let because the district is waiting for the results of pollution tests taken in Edwards Bayou in September.

The tests are expected to indicate whether Edwards Bayou will be able to handle effluent from both cities.

Mississippi Power reports decrease in customer rates

Mississippi Power Company customers will pay less for electricity in 1985 because for the second consecutive year the customer charge for fuel will decrease.

Alan Barton, president of the Gulfport-based utility, said a 1.992 mill reduction in the fuel adjustment charge for 1985 will mean customers will pay about $2 less for each 1,000 kilowatt-hours of electricity they purchase.

"While this may not sound like a substantial decrease in the price of electricity, I think it is significant because we have been able to hold our own and even decrease the price of our product while other costs are continually rising," Barton said.

In 1984, Mississippi Power Company's fuel adjustment charge was lowered by .638 mills, or about $2 for every 3,000 kilowatt-hours of electricity purchased.

"We have not filed a retail rate case since early 1982 and we are making every effort to keep the cost of electricity as low as possible, while continuing to provide a high level of service reliability," Barton said.

The fuel adjustment charge is a method approved by the state Public Service Commission for utilities to recover the cost of fuel burned to produce electricity.

"We calculate the fuel adjustment factor each December to reflect our estimated per-kilowatt-hour fuel cost for the coming year," Barton said. "Then this set figure is multiplied by the number of kilowatt-hours a customer purchases each month and this is part of his bill. This factor is changed each year and reflects actual fuel expenses."

For 1984 the fuel adjustment factor was 2.989 mills. For 1985 the factor will drop to .997 mills per kilowatt-hour.

Mississippi Power Company is a member of the Southern electric system and serves more than 169,000 customers in 23 southeast Mississippi counties.

Our legislature needs to consider education

Education of our youth appears in recent years to be one of the main concerns for most American families.

Many educational systems in recent years have not been producing the quality of students to keep up with our many advances.

Much research has been done throughout the country looking for the causes and reasons for not producing a better quality student.

Researchers have come up with many different reasons, and possibly all or the majority may be correct.

We do feel there is a tremendous need to have quality teachers in order to produce quality students.

In Mississippi there has been an exodus of quality teachers to other states and other professions.

There are many reasons for the loss of these teachers and indications are the low pay is the number one reasons for many of the teachers leaving.

There are still many teachers in our school systems who are dedicated beyond the call of duty and we need to keep them.

The Board of Directors of the Mississippi Association of School Administrators (MASA), realizes there are many teachers leaving the classrooms in the state.

MASA is urging the Mississippi Legislature to increase teachers pay to the Southeastern average as soon as possible.

In 1982 the state legislature dealt with many reforms in education in our state and gave indications they were concerned with helping improve pay for teachers.

As our legislature meets in January, we do hope strong consideration will be given to teacher salaries and passage of the proper appropriations.

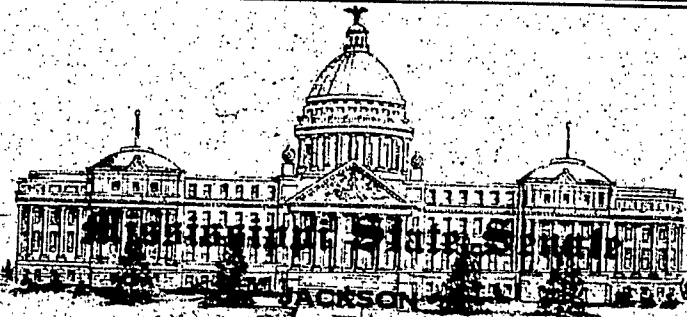

This week the Bay St. Louis Municipal Separate School District's Board of Trustees unanimously passed a resolution calling for Hancock County's delegation to strongly support legislation necessary to bring about the needed teacher salary increases.

Funding will be a problem for teacher salary increases just like many other agencies looking for more monies from our state legislature.

Emphasis should be placed on education, as we will all benefit for many years to come.

O come, let us adore Him! May your Christmas be full of joy!

Sen. Tommy Brooks, chairman of the Senate Study Committee on Flooding in the Pearl River Basin, in consultation with the Mississippi Research and Development Center announced that a contract to study flooding in the Pearl River Basin would not be entered into between Gannett Fleming, an engineering and planning firm headquartered in Harrisburg, Pa., and the Mississippi R&D Center.

Brooks said, "The Senate Committee has worked since June and in the process has gathered a great deal of technical information. Much of the information is of a highly technical nature and neither the members of the committee nor the R&D Center staff have the background or the expertise to competently evaluate this data."

Consequently, I felt the committee needed outside assistance in preparing its report to the Legislature by January 8, 1985."

Brooks stated that the R&D Center entered into negotiations with Gannett Fleming concerning the contract but it could not be executed because there was concern that the services that Gannett Fleming could provide in the short time available would not meet the scope of the study as contemplated by the committee.

The committee wanted to have an evaluation of prior flood control studies, but Gannett Fleming indicated that while they would be able to draw certain conclusions and recommendations from the prior studies they would be unable to evaluate these studies before the deadline.

The firm stated that it could review readily available studies and reports on Pearl River basin flooding, present recorded flood damages, tabulate flood control alternatives, compile costs and benefits from previous reports, and summarize previous recommendations.

Brooks stated, "Also the difficulty in identifying and assembling data which would be found by researching archives of various entities in the short time left before the final report is due was another factor in the decision."

The work by Gannett Fleming would be done during the month of December and early January and it would probably be difficult to schedule necessary interviews, do research and obtain copies of flood control data because of the upcoming holidays."

The Senate resolution creating the committee calls for a report to the full Senate prior to the 1985 Regular Session which convenes on Jan. 8 of next year.

The committee is made up of senators from each of the 18 counties bordering the Pearl River. It has heard testimony throughout the summer and fall from federal, state and local agencies which have done studies and worked to alleviate flooding along the Pearl River.

Brooks stated that a committee meeting will be called later in the month and a report will be prepared for presentation to the Senate.

MEC MISSISSIPPI ECONOMIC COUNCIL

FOLLOW THE GUY GROFF EXAMPLE

Mississippi lost one of the finest public officials with the untimely death of Guy Groff, director of the state's Legislative Budget Office. Prior to his appointment as director of the budget office, Mr. Groff had served as director of the State Personnel Board and, prior to that, as a member of the staff of PEER, the legislative evaluation agency.

He has been eulogized as a public official of integrity, fairness, and courage; and he will be sorely missed. Where can we find another Guy Groff? Remember where Mississippi found him. Mr. Groff began his work with state government after retirement as a career military officer. Mississippi seems blessed with an abundance of talent and energy from among the ranks of those retired from military, business, and professional careers.

Retired military officers have served in the Legislature, in local chambers of commerce, in the industrial development field, and they have launched new business careers. Retired business and professional executives have served as state and local governmental officials; served on school boards, and participated in various study committees and commissions.

The point is this: Mississippi has lost an able public servant in Guy Groff who began his governmental career after retirement. Let's not overlook this talent pool as we continue to search for men and women with experience and wisdom who can make major contributions to this state and its communities.

When you are making a success of something, it's not work. It's a way of life. You enjoy yourself because you are making your contribution to the world.

The Holiday Season is fast upon us and we realize many residents will be visiting friends and relatives distances from here.

We hope everyone will drive with caution during the holidays; and please, if you drink, do not drive.

Too many holiday celebrations for families are nightmares because of accidents, and the majority of them involve someone who has had too much to drink.

If you drink, please let someone not drinking drive, you may save the life of someone you do not even know or even your very own.

Have a Happy Holiday Season, and wish each of you a Very Merry Christmas.

Amtrak's Gulf Coast Limited from Mobile to New Orleans stands a chance of not operating after Jan. 6 unless Mississippi's Legislature commits itself to putting up $311,000 towards train expenses.

It has taken many years of hard work by many folks to get a passenger train service started along the Coast.

We realize efforts are now underway of obtaining a commuter train from Ocean Springs to New Orleans and back, and if the Gulf Coast Limited is not funded to continue, this could also be lost.

Ridership on the Gulf Coast Limited for the World's Fair has been reportedly three times more than anticipated. It is true that ridership is now down, but efforts are underway to make further connections into Florida on the Amtrak train.

The railroad over the years has meant a lot to Hancock County and its residents.

The railroad was a key link, especially with the City of New Orleans, and played a very important financial role with the county's business community for years.

The board of directors of the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce has passed a resolution requesting support from our legislature for the needed funds.

It is hoped that Mississippi's Legislature will consider the importance of a commuter service for the coast.

Matters of Health

ADVICE OFFERED FOR PROTECTING AGAINST THE COLD WEATHER

Q: Elderly persons seem to suffer most in the cold weather. What can we do to protect ourselves?

A: Higher energy costs and fuel shortages force many people to turn down their thermostats during the winter. For some, a cooler room may merely be uncomfortable. For the elderly, lower indoor temperatures may represent a health risk by causing a drop in internal body temperature, a condition known as hypothermia. If not detected and treated promptly, hypothermia can be fatal.

Hypothermia is a condition marked by an abnormally low internal body temperature, 95 degrees Fahrenheit or below. A simple drop in skin temperature is not hypothermia. While hypothermia can develop quickly, it usually occurs over a period of a few days.

The elderly probably account for about half of the victims of accidental hypothermia. Infants are also at risk, as are a few adults between the ages 35-65. Infants are thought to be at a risk because their internal temperature control is not developed.

Older adults are especially vulnerable for several reasons: they may not shiver or react normally to cold; they may live alone or may be isolated without a phone to reach help in case of accident or sickness; they may be unable to move around well to keep up body temperature, or they may be taking drugs that keep the body from regulating temperature normally.

The elderly are more susceptible to accidental hypothermia because, with advancing age, people become less able to resist and recover from such stresses as prolonged exposure to the cold. They may not sense that they are becoming cold, and their bodies may not adjust to changes in temperature as quickly as a younger person's body.

Clues to look for if you suspect that an elderly person may be suffering from hypothermia include a change in appearance or behavior during cold weather, such as shallow breathing, slurred speech, confusion or drowsiness; uncomfortable shivering or even a complete lack of shivering if the room is unusually cold; stiff muscles, or a slow heart beat.

If you suspect someone has hypothermia, take his or her temperature. If it is below 95 degrees Fahrenheit or does not register on an oral thermometer, use a rectal thermometer for a more accurate reading. If a thermometer is not available, warm your hands on your chest or abdomen and use them to compare the person's body temperature with your own. If you get no thermometer reading or if the person feels very cold, get emergency help.

While waiting for help, wrap the person in a thermal or electric blanket or use a heating pad at a medium setting. If the person is conscious, give him or her warm liquids. Don't rub the limbs. This could worsen the condition.

There are a number of ways an elderly person can protect himself or herself against possible hypothermia:

- Keep living and sleeping quarters at 65 degrees Fahrenheit (or higher if you or another elderly person in the house is ill).
- Dress warmly during the day, eat enough food and stay as active as possible to maintain body heat.
- Wear enough clothing and use warm blankets when sleeping, since hypothermia often may start during sleep.
- If you are on medication to treat anxiety, depression, nervousness or nausea, ask your doctor whether the medication could affect your body temperature control.
- Ask a friend, neighbor or relative to look in on you once or twice a day, especially during severe cold weather.
- Remember, if there is any doubt whether the person may have hypothermia or not, it is better to have them checked out by a doctor to be sure.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Floridians issue plea for Mississippi support of Gulf Coast passenger train

Dear Editor,

People's Transit Organization is working to extend the "Gulf Coast Limited" from Mobile to Jacksonville.

Establishment of the old "Gulf Wind" route will allow Mississippians to travel into Florida and other southeastern states as well as open up Mississippi cities on the Gulf Coast and elsewhere to people from Florida and the southeastern U.S.

In addition, increased traffic will be coming through and stopping in Mississippi from the western and midwestern United States.

Amtrak is studying the Mobile-Jacksonville route and is highly likely to issue a favorable recommendation because: (1) the "Gulf Coast Limited" has been a very successful passenger train; (2) we pointed out flaws in Amtrak's original report which when corrected make the train feasible to run; (3) the new train is state as well as federally supported.

Assuming Amtrak issues a favorable report, the Florida Department of Transportation will likely put in the governors' budget the amount of money necessary to start the train running later this year.

We write at this time to let you know what is happening in Florida because we are very concerned that all our efforts could be in vain if Mississippi does not come up with its share of funding for the Gulf Coast Limited this year.

Alabama and Louisiana have already committed their share of funds. The Gulf Coast Limited is one of the most successful state-sponsored trains Amtrak has ever had.

If Mississippi lets this train die, it will be a long time before any of us gets more rail passenger service.

Please write your governor and legislators immediately and tell them you want Mississippi to keep the Gulf Coast Limited running. In this way you will help to again establish sound rail passenger service in the southeast United States.

Sincerely,
John Hedrick

Her high neckline with matching lace collar rose from a sheer yoke of English net. Juliet sleeves with shirred pouf at the shoulder tapered at the wrist. The full, gathered skirt with scalloped hemline revealed a lace flounced border encircling the semi-cathedral train.

Her headpiece of matching lace was designed with tiny silk roses and pearls with illusion pouf at the back and waltz-length streamers.

She carried a cascade of white silk poinsettias, holly, jubilee gyp and seed pearls with white picot streamers.

The flower girl carried a white wicker basket of miniature white poinsettias, holly and jubilee gyp.

Kim Johnson of Waveland was best man.

Ushers were Johnny Hozey, brother-in-law of the groom and Lawrence Favre and Brian Favre, cousins of the bride, all of Bay St. Louis.

Mrs. Maurice Favre, aunt of the bride, was attired in a street-length dress of gray and white crepe with jewel neckline and cummerbund waist. The groom's mother chose a periwinkle-blue crepe dress with high collared neckline and long tapered sleeves.

A reception followed at the Waveland American Legion Hall. Decorations were in a Christmas theme.

VFW Post 3253 and the Ladies Auxiliary

The Theodore S. Price VFW Post 3253 and the Ladies Auxiliary entertained the patients from the VA Hospital in Gulfport with a Christmas party at the Post Home in Bay St. Louis on Saturday, Dec. 15.

The veterans were served seafood gumbo, sandwiches and sweets. Santa Claus arrived and presented gifts to all. Following the dinner and Santa's visit, the VA patients, VFW members and the ladies auxiliary sang Christmas carols. A good time was had by all.

American Legion Post 77 Unit Auxiliary

The Bourgeois-Stieffel-Ray American Legion Post 77 Unit auxiliary has been very active recently. November's activities included the fingerprinting and photographing of 121 area children; poppy making by Lois Fallo and a committee of 12; the celebration of Veterans Day on Nov. 12 in which Miss Poppy of 1984-85, Misty Revere, appeared in the parade; and the three-day gift-wrapping marathon at the VA Hospital in Gulfport. A Thanksgiving party for veterans was held on Nov. 20.

December 4 was the Holiday Gift Workshop at the Gulfport VA Hospital. More than 100 veterans were given gifts. On Dec. 15, the James "Jimmy" Dean Juke Box Dance was held and Dec. 17 was the annual cookie bake. The ladies of the auxiliary will pack these in attractive tins and distribute to shut-ins during the holidays.

During this time the auxiliary has welcomed 10 new members and approved donations to the United Way of Hancock County, Salvation Army, a young Waveland cerebral palsy victim, and the James Dean Campaign Fund. If elected, Dean will be the first Mississippian and first Korean veteran to be National Commander of the American Legion.

"Magic Mushrooms" — that's what my brothers and sister and I used to call the Mushroom Merquies the family cook made for the trays of confections at Christmastime — and, if we begged her often enough, at other times.

These were toadstool-shaped bits of meringue, baked briefly, quite delectable. But, let's turn our thoughts, and our cooking, instead, to the "real thing" — that umbrella-shaped fungus that has pleased man's tastebuds ever since Biblical times.

The early Greeks and Romans believed that this fungus or vegetable or whatever had powers which gave strength in battle, and the Romans called it the "Food of the Gods," served only on festive occasions.

Man has sought out the wild mushroom over the years, a pleasant but perilous pastime unless you know the lethal from the luscious, and the deadly from the delicious. You'd best do as I, and confine your mushroom hunting to the markets! And, be thankful that the mushroom is now so widely cultivated that you need not go mushroom-hungry for fresh or dried or canned mushrooms.

Carol Surgi is about the best "mushroom-stuffer" I know — but it's rather difficult to give you her recipe, not that she minds giving it out, as some cooks do with their "special-specials," but because Carol cooks much as I do, with what she wants to cook, what's on hand, and so forth, and we seldom measure.

The way Carol and I do, we start with a pound of fresh mushrooms, some seasonings, along with cooked chicken or whatever's on hand, and so on — but, we'll try to give it to you more exactly. So, here's:

CAROL'S

STUFFED MUSHROOMS

18 to 24 mushroom caps, about a pound

1 to 1½ cup cooked chopped chicken (Carol uses two chicken leg quarters, but she's a generous cook)

green onions, chopped fine

olive oil, for drizzling atop caps

butter

Wipe the mushrooms (if very sandy, wash and dry). Be careful with the water, as mushrooms are like sponges and soak up the water, so they have to cook out the water along with the flavor.

Cut off stems and reserve, chopping some to mix with the chopped chicken. Chop the green onions and garlic, mix with the salt and pepper, and cook together in the butter. Add the seasoned breadcrumbs, just enough to hold together, and fill the mushroom caps. Sprinkle more crumbs atop, then drizzle olive oil atop each mushroom cap, place on baking sheet, pat some butter around the caps, and cook at 350° for about 15 minutes.

These are delicious as cocktail tray tidbits, as appetizers, anyway you want to serve them. Stuff them with chicken, as we have done, or with crab or shrimp or just bread or even rice. Mushrooms are quite versatile, as well as delicious.

MR. AND MRS. THERON FURR

Furr—Miner

Merileigh Miner and Theron Furr of Ocean Springs were united in matrimony in a candlelight ceremony at St. John's Episcopal Church in Ocean Springs, Saturday, November 24 at 7 p.m.

A pre-nuptial program of joyous organ and trumpet music was presented by organist Joyce Cox and trumpeter Charles Cox of Biloxi. The Rev. Harold O. Martin performed the ceremony assisted by the Rev. Alfred Mead.

Merileigh, daughter of Maryalice and John Miner, was given in marriage by her father to Theron, son of Dr. and Mrs. Richard Furr.

She was attended by maid of honor Debbie Brashier and bridesmaids Gay Cox Crosby, Lisa McKenzie, Jane Megehee, Tanya Jenkins and Sara Furr, sister of the groom.

The junior bridesmaid was Whitney White. Flower girls were Anna and Robin Ivester, nieces of the groom; and Melissa Miner and Elizabeth Miner, nieces of the bride.

Teagirls at the reception were Mallory Mestayer and Megan Uram of Bay St. Louis and Sara Godsey from Ocean Springs.

Groomsmen and ushers included Sam Furr and Henry Furr, brothers of the groom; David Miner, Steven Miner and John Miner, brothers of the bride; and Tony Tramonte, Paul Allen, Steven Inglis and Kelley McDonald.

Assistant to the groomsmen was Michael Miner, nephew of the bride.

Robert Miner, also a nephew, was ringbearer.

Jarrod White served as acolyte.

The bride's gown was custom designed and made for her by her friend Barbara Neely of Bay St. Louis. It was fashioned of candlelight tissue taffeta. The long pointed bodice featured panels of heavy re-embroidered lace in front and back with pearls accenting the patterns of the lace. A Queen Anne collar framed the neckline. Leg of mutton sleeves ending in the traditional bridal points over the hands were accented with appliques of matching lace. The pearls used on the dress were from the wedding gown worn by the bride's mother.

The full, gathered skirt swept into a cathedral train. Bouffant illusion supported a Brussels lace veil bought by the bride in Antwerp. It was designed in the ancient bridal bouquet pattern. Both were held in place by a narrow lace band.

A bridal bouquet of cascading white roses, ivy and stephanotis was held in a filigreed sterling silver bouquet holder used by Helen Wakefield Yale (great-grandmother of the bride) when she married Judge John Hanson Kennard in New Orleans in 1883.

All maids were gowned in candlelight moire' taffeta similar in design to the bride's, each featuring apricot sash and small apricot flowers on the short leg of mutton sleeves.

Flower girls wore simple gowns of palest apricot moire' with candlelight sashes. Sonia tea roses with baby's breath and ivy cascade bouquets were carried by all.

The rings exchanged by the bride and groom were made by Dr. Steven Miner, brother of the bride.

Mrs. Robert Oswald and Mrs. Lamar Jordan assisted at the wedding and at the reception which was held at the Biloxi Community Center. Ms. Margaret Furr registered guests. Many second and third grade students of the bride from Christ Episcopal Day School, Bay St. Louis, were present as well as numerous out-of-town friends and family.

After a wedding trip to the Grand Hotel at Point Clear, Ala., the Furrs are at home in Ocean Springs.

Benny—Montana

Brenda Yvonne Montana and George Edward Benny Jr. of Gulfport were united in marriage Saturday, December 8, at Handshoro Baptist Church in Gulfport with the Reverend Arnold D. Bridges officiating at the afternoon ceremony.

A program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Barbara Rhodes, soloist, who was accompanied by Mrs. Sherry Loppower, organist.

Parents of the bride are Mrs. Myrtis B. Montana of Gulfport and the late Bernie R. Montana. The groom is the son of Mrs. Lucy Elizabeth Benny of Gulfport and the late George Edward Benny.

Given in marriage by her brother, Mr. David R. Montana Sr., the bride wore a formal gown of chantilly lace over bridal taffeta. The gown was designed with a Queen Anne neckline accented with jeweled lace appliques and fitted bodice with seed pearls. The full flowing skirt with tiers of chantilly lace swept into a chapel-length train. Her two-tiered veil of bridal illusion fell from a headpiece of nosegays. She carried a bouquet of silk sweetheart roses, baby's breath and carnations. She also wore a pearl necklace and earrings, gifts from the groom.

Pamela Ann Strickland attended her sister as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Lydia Easterling and June Goch, sisters of the groom and Beverly Strickland, sister of the bride.

Rachael Strickland and Ashley Strickland, nieces of the bride, served as flower girls.

Serving as best man was Mark Benny, brother of the groom.

Groomsmen were Albert Jacques, Jimmy Meeks and Bruce Pomponio. Ushers were Donald Montana, brother of the bride and Clyde Strickland.

Out-of-town guests included Mrs. Nelson Fortenberry of Jackson and Mr. Stewart B. Nelson of Washington, D.C.

Bayou View Apartments Clubhouse was the setting for a reception following the ceremony. After a wedding trip to Destin, Fla., the couple will reside in Gulfport. The bride is employed with Naval Oceanography office at NSTL. The groom is employed at the Veterans Administration in Gulfport.

ART EXHIBIT—Artist Elizabeth Vest prepares for an exhibit of her oil painting to be featured at the Hancock County-Bay St. Louis Public Library.

Bay St. Louis artist to exhibit oil paintings

An exhibit of oil paintings by Elizabeth Vest is now on display in the Crawford Room of the Hancock County-Bay St. Louis Public Library.

Vest, a resident of Bay St. Louis, is a native of Houma, La. She attended Nichols State University and continued her art studies at Tulane University, the New Orleans Academy of Art and Studio One in Gray, La.

At the Cape School of Art in Provincetown, Mass., she studied with Henry Henshe and was featured in an exhibit entitled "Five from Provincetown." In addition she has participated in numerous workshops in drawing, pottery, sculpture, oil and watercolor.

In discussing her current exhibit, Vest stated that it is difficult to categorize her work as a whole.

"Each painting," she said, "is a separate statement of time—an expression of everything that is and all that is about me. I want each painting to stand alone as well as be a part of my past and future work," she continued.

Although the paintings on exhibit are done in oil, Vest describes herself as a multi-media artist and uses whatever medium—oil, acrylic, pastel, sculpture—to allow a work to best express itself.

"I want people to think and feel when they view my work, for each painting is more than just a picture," she explained. "It is an experience that should take the viewer outside himself and beyond his perception of reality."

To do this Vest feels that she must give up control of herself and become one with the painting during its creation. "Only then can the work be let free," she said.

The feeling that she is an intricate part of each painting is perhaps the

JAMES MICHAEL NICHOLS

The christening of James Michael Nichols chosen son of James and Janell Nichols, was held at 10 a.m. November 24 in Our Lady of the Gulf Catholic Church.

Monsignor Gregory Johnson of St. Michael's Catholic Church in Biloxi performed the ceremony.

A reception was held following the ceremony at the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Kingston. Family and close friends attended.

The holiday season is also the height of the citrus season. Look for fruit that is firm and heavy for its size. Refrigerate until ready to use to prevent skins drying and loss of juice.

When using citrus, remember that room temperature fruit yields the most juice, especially when it is rolled on the counter before squeezing. Grate extra citrus peel and freeze in sealed plastic bags. Use as fresh grated peel. Save citrus shells after juicing; freeze and use later as serving containers for sauces, salads and desserts.

The flavedo, or outer colored peel of citrus, has tiny oil sacs that are full of subtle and distinctive flavor. When the peel is grated and used in lieu of synthetic citrus flavorings, people get a fresh-as-fruit taste.

The albedo, or white portion of citrus peel, contains valuable nutrients. No need to worry about eating the albedo. It contains fiber and aids the digestive process.

The following varieties of citrus are now available.

Navel oranges are deep yellow color, extra large fruit. They peel and section easily. Best supply: November to January.

Hamlin is smooth surface and medium size. It's an excellent juice, orange. Best supply: October to December.

Temple oranges are small with deep orange color. They peel easily. Best supply: January to March.

Tangelo is a large fruit. A cross between tangerine and grapefruit. Deep orange in color. Best supply: December to March.

Tangerine is small or medium fruit, easy to peel and deeply colored. It has a rich sweet flavor. Best supply: November to February.

March Seedless grapefruit has smooth yellow skin and is medium size, usually flattened on each end. Contains less than eight seeds. Best supply: November to June.

Pink Seedless grapefruit is similar to March Seedless grapefruit except that the meat of the fruit has a pink or reddish tint. Best supply: October to May.

To keep energy up and weight down, try these tricks. A half grapefruit is a quick snack that provides energy to carry a person through an afternoon of shopping.

Adopt an either/or principle at the beginning of each meal. Choose between a drink or an appetizer, an appetizer or a dessert or a dessert or slice of bread.

Use orange or grapefruit juice as the base for holiday punches. Four ounces of orange juice has about 60 calories, while four ounces of non-alcoholic eggnog has 170 calories.

When a favorite food is served at a meal, enjoy it first; it will be easier to stop eating.

Fresh oranges, tangerines and grapefruit make a wonderfully light and refreshing dessert after a heavy holiday meal. Citrus is high in nutrients and has a sweet taste without many calories.

Sip orange juice and club soda while cooking. This is a good way to avoid nibbling and tasting before serving.

When energy lags in the late afternoon, pick up with a juicy orange or tangerine. Fruit contains three different natural sugars: sucrose and glucose, which act quickly to raise the blood sugar, and slower acting fructose. Together, these natural sugars make fruit an ideal energy-giving snack.

The refined sugar in hard candy or chocolate are effective, but temporary sources of quick energy. Refined sugar is rapidly absorbed into the body causing a surge on non-lasting energy. The level of blood sugar then declines just as rapidly producing an energy slump.

Fruit juices that are available at most snack counters are also a good source of energy. Take a break from holiday shopping to sample orange and grapefruit juices. Fruits and fruit juices are easily packed in a brown paper bag for a lunch or snack break during shopping.

Don't forget to include plenty of citrus for special gift baskets and for cooking during the holidays.

"THE BIRTH OF JESUS"

The angel in his appearance to Joseph said of Mary, "And she shall bring forth a son, and thou shalt call his name Jesus; for he shall save his people from their sins." (Matt. 1:21)

Jesus said of his mission, "For the Son of Man is come to seek and to save that which was lost." (Luke 19:10)

Jesus came to earth to be our Saviour.

The angel Gabriel also appeared to Mary. He said to her, "Hail, thou that art highly favored, the Lord is with thee: blessed art thou among women... Fear not Mary: for thou hast found favor with God. And behold, thou shalt conceive in thy womb, and bring forth a son, and shalt call his name Jesus... then said Mary unto the angel, How shalt this be, seeing I know not a man? And the angel answered and said unto her, The Holy Ghost shall come upon thee, and the power of the highest shall overshadow thee: Therefore, also that holy thing which shall be born of thee shall be called the Son of God." (Luke 1:26-35) This was the highest honor ever afforded to a woman. Jesus was to be both human and divine.

The prophet Micah had prophesied Jesus would be born in Bethlehem. (Micah 5:2)

Evidently the providence of God intervened in the fulfillment of Micah's prophecy. Caesar Augustus decreed a tax, "and all went to be taxed, every one into his own city."

Therefore, it was necessary for Mary and Joseph to go from Galilee to Judea to be taxed. Their home town was Bethlehem.

When they arrived in Bethlehem, the inns were full. The stable was to be their hotel room. That night "she brought forth her first born son, and wrapped him in swaddling clothes, and laid him in a manger."

The manger was the container from which the animals ate their feed.

That night "...the angels said unto them, (the shepherds in the field) fear not for, behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people. For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Savior, which is Christ the Lord... and suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God, and saying, Glory to God in the highest and on Earth peace, good will toward men." (Luke 2:10-14)

The shepherds go together and went to Bethlehem. They wanted to see what had occurred. When they found Mary and the child, the shepherds told what they had seen and heard.

As soon as the necessary time had elapsed, Jesus was brought to the temple in Jerusalem to present him to the Lord. This was a necessary requirement.

"As it is written in the law of the Lord, every male that openeth the womb shall be called holy to the Lord." (Luke 2:23)

The law was the law given to Moses. (Numbers 3:13)

The Holy Spirit had revealed to the aged Simeon he would not die before he had seen the Lord Christ. "...when the parents brought in the child Jesus, to do for him after the custom of the law. Then he took him up in his arms and blessed God, and said, Lord, how lettest thou thy servant depart in peace, according to thy word: for mine eyes have seen thy salvation, which thou hast prepared before the face of all people; a light to lighten the Gentiles, and the glory of thy people Israel." (Luke 2:25-32)

He was to be the Saviour of both Jew and Gentile.

State pecan production down almost 40 percent

By Dr. Richard Mullenax
Horticulture Leader
Extension Service

Pecan harvesting in Mississippi for 1984 has begun in earnest, and producers are expecting much less production than they enjoyed in 1983. Growers are expected to harvest about five million pounds this year as compared to eight million pounds in 1983. This trend applies all the way across the pecan growing belt where a short crop down some 20 million pounds is expected.

One of the big reasons production is down is because yields on native trees are off. These trees include yard trees and trees along creeks, rivers, pastures and fence rows.

There are other reasons for a short crop this year, too. The infestation by the insect phylloxera in the spring damaged yard trees as well as orchard trees. The activity of this insect often terminates the current year's growth and reduces pecan production on what would have been new growth. This damage will carry over to the 1985 crop as well.

Most pecan trees in Mississippi produced heavy crops in 1983 thus depleting the trees' carbohydrate reserves needed to set flowers and produce nuts in 1984. This is not to say, however, that all commercial orchards were affected, because they weren't. Some orchards in Mississippi this year have excellent crops. Others are average or below average for production in 1984.

The Christmas freeze of 1983 damaged many pecan varieties. The "Desirable" variety seemed to be the most severely affected by cold weather. Due to the depletion of carbohydrates and the fact that the trees were not yet in deep dormancy made cold damage worse that early in the winter.

It's not often that Mississippi experiences sub-zero weather in December. In fact, weather data show last December to be the coldest on record. Other pecan varieties that have shown cold injury include "Mahan," "Schley," "Cheyenne," and "Owens." The "Stuart" variety which is probably the most widely planted variety, has shown very little effects from cold damage.

Growers also have encountered difficulty in controlling insects—primarily aphids and mites. Many of the chemicals recommended apparently are not as effective as they once were.

The extended dry periods also took its toll on pecan production this year. Several areas in Mississippi went as long as six weeks without rain. This resulted in an unusually large nut drop in August and early September. This reduced the 1984 crop even further.

Consumers need not be greatly concerned about the availability of pecans for the holiday season. Growers will still produce enough pecans to satisfy the Mississippi housewife's needs. Many growers are now going into the retail business and sell their pecans at the orchard site. Some are even into the mail order business and are sending pecans worldwide.

Should anyone wish a list of pecan producers who will ship pecans they can send inquiries to Mississippi Pecan Growers Association, 200 Edgewood Drive, Starkville, Miss. 39759.

Erosion Control For Construction Sites

Hancock County is and will continue to grow in population. These new residents will mean new homes, new places of business, new shopping centers, new roads, new recreational facilities and more erosion.

Land will be cleared, shaped, hauled, and used differently from its natural state. These changes will cause natural cover and natural drainage to be altered causing much erosion and sediment. Studies show that erosion from construction sites is about 10 times greater than from cultivated land.

The amount of erosion that occurs is determined by soil type, the slope, the intensity of rainfall, and construction methods. Much of the erosion occurs during the construction period, but areas below a site may erode more after construction is completed, because of rapid runoff from impervious pavement, parking lots, or compacted soils.

Damage to the land does not come from erosion alone. The increased runoff erodes stream banks and causes flooding. The sediment from the erosion pollutes streams, lakes, ponds, and fills in drainage ditches.

Sediment is the greatest single pollutant of streams, lakes and ponds. Sediment lowers the water quality of water for municipal and industrial uses and for water-based recreation.

Sediment also damages the areas where it is deposited. It buries lawns, fills ditches, and clogs storm sewers, culverts, and drains.

Sediment can also fill small lakes and ponds to a point where they are useless.

Erosion and sedimentation can be controlled effectively and at reasonable cost by following certain principles:

- 1. Using soils that are suited for development;
- 2. Leaving the soil bare for the shortest time possible;
- 3. Reducing the velocity and controlling the flow of runoff water;
- 4. Detaining runoff on the site to trap sediment; and
- 5. Releasing runoff safely to down stream areas.

The use of the Hancock County Soil Survey can help community or individual planners to determine land use suitability. Soil surveys include soil maps, soil descriptions, and soil interpretations. A copy of the survey can be gotten at the SCS office in Kiln or the public library.

There are several practices that can aid in the controlling of erosion from construction sites. Terraces, diversions, grassed waterways, debris basins, and critical area plantings are some of the practices that may help. Because every site would be different, a site evaluation should be done and then plan the needed practices.

Remember, if you are building, don't just plan the structure, plan for erosion control, too.

Call or come by the Soil Conservation Service Office in Kiln for more information and a copy of our information bulletin on controlling erosion on construction sites, 255-3225.

Santa and His Reindeer

Can't you hear sleigh bells ringing, not so far away.

I'll bet if you listen close enough you will hear old Santa say: "Hurry, Prancer, Dancer, and Vixen too, up, up, and away and, Rudolph, you can guide my sleigh."

"We must make our deadline really on Christmas Day. We have a bike for Jack, and a doll, for Jill—don't you just know that they will be thrilled."

So Santa hurries all through the night, working hard under the bright moon light.

Making sure the kids are asleep, he puts the presents under the tree. And then back up the chimney, there he goes, his chubby cheeks red as a rose.

Who will be next? Maybe you, I'll bet you would be happy if you knew.

What Christmas Means To Me

Christmas has a special meaning to me, it means more than a present under the Christmas tree.

It is a promise of love and of things to come.

It was a beautiful gift from the Father when He gave His only son to die for you and me and to break the chains of sin and all its misery.

And to give us hope where there was nothing but despair, and to give us love that we can freely share.

Love is the greatest gift of all and that has to be a must.

We must share our love with each other, like the... Father shared with us.

If we could learn to love one another that would surely be enough.

And that is what Christmas means to me.

Martin forms seven-firm group to pursue space lab contracts

Martin Marietta Aerospace reports formation of a seven-company industry team to compete for principal elements of NASA's upcoming space station program.

Members of the Martin Marietta team include Hamilton Standard of Windsor Locks, Conn.; Wyle Laboratories and McDonnell Douglas Technical Services Co., both of Huntsville, Ala.; Honeywell Space and Strategic Avionics Division of Clearwater, Fla.; Hercules Inc. of Salt Lake City, Utah; and Hughes Aircraft's Microelectronics Division of Irvine, Calif.

"This top-notch team incorporates experience gained in many of the programs that have been forerunners of the space station, including the Skylab program in the 1970s during which astronauts lived and worked in space for prolonged periods," said Caleb B. Hurtt, president of Martin Marietta Aerospace.

"Each was chosen for expertise in a specific area of responsibility and because of overall experience in space systems, especially manned space systems. The team demonstrates the strength of our commitment to assuring the success of NASA's space station initiative," Mr. Hurtt added.

Proposals are to be submitted to NASA's Marshall Space Flight Center by Nov. 15, and award of competing contracts for various definition and design projects is expected early in 1985.

Under the team proposal, Hamilton Standard would contribute to environmental control and life support systems for the space station; Wyle Laboratories would focus on user accommodations; McDonnell Douglas would outfit a laboratory module; Honeywell would supply displays, controls, and integrated sensors; Hercules would contribute studies on composite materials; and Hughes would furnish internal communications.

Martin Marietta will exercise overall responsibility for the team effort as systems engineering and integration contractor.

Martin Marietta, one of eight aerospace companies that have already conducted preliminary space station studies for NASA, was payload integrating contractor for the Skylab program, built 10 of the mission's experiments, and outfitted the multiple docking adapter where newly arriving astronaut teams docket their Apollo spacecraft to come aboard the experimental station.

The company also expects to draw upon experience obtained in the Space Shuttle external tank and manned maneuvering unit programs, and from its work in integrating all Shuttle payloads for the Department of Defense. In addition to its preliminary space station work, Martin Marietta is conducting studies for NASA on orbital maneuvering and orbital transfer vehicles, which are expected to be important adjuncts to the space station.

Martin Marietta's space station work will be conducted primarily at the Denver Aerospace complex southwest of Denver, which houses advanced space simulation and test facilities, and at the Michoud aerospace division in New Orleans. James W. McCown is vice president and space station manager for Martin Marietta.

Gulf fisheries potential set at additional $8.1 billion

It may be possible for Gulf fisheries to add $8.1 billion annually to the national economy if the federal government would invest about $36 million to implement a comprehensive five-year research program aimed at maximum utilization of marine resources in the Gulf of Mexico, according to a report to be issued in January by the Gulf States Marine Fisheries Commission.

The "Marine Fisheries Initiative" report, financed under a $70,000 contract from the Gulf and South Atlantic Fisheries Development Foundation, was compiled by a 28-member task force comprised of representatives from federal and state agencies, research and educational institutions and the commercial fishing industry in Mississippi, Texas, Alabama, Louisiana and Florida.

Editors for the final draft of the report were Dr. Thomas McIlwain, assistant director for fisheries research and management at Gulf Coast Research Laboratory (GCRL), Ocean Springs; Larry B. Simpson, GSMFC executive director; Dr. David J. Etzold, professor of management at the University of Southern Mississippi and J.Y. Christmas chairman of the GSMFC Technical Coordinating Committee and assistant director emeritus for fisheries research and management at GCRL.

Dr. McIlwain prepared a discussion paper in 1983 while on the staff of Congressman Trent Lott concerning research needs of Gulf fisheries which provided the impetus for the MARFIN report.

"The MARFIN document will present to Congress a program that is designed to increase the contribution of the Gulf fishery to the nation's economy," Dr. McIlwain said. "This will benefit the region with new jobs and hopefully will help to offset some of the fishery trade deficit."

In 1983, U.S. fishery production was unable to meet increased domestic demands, resulting in $4 billion in imported seafood totaling 8 percent of the federal trade deficit. At the very least, U.S. catches must double by 1990 to offset most seafood imports and to meet domestic demand which has increased 2½ percent annually since 1960.

"Research funding in the Gulf region has been insufficient to produce adequate data on available fisheries stocks, harvest methods and processing and marketing methodologies," Dr. McIlwain explained. "This is one factor which has prevented full and wise utilization of fisheries resources."

Although the Gulf produces 37 percent of the U.S. commercial seafood harvest, the region has been allocated only 14 percent of the available federal appropriations in recent years for fisheries research and development.

In spite of current efforts by Congress to trim the federal budget, Dr. McIlwain sees a real possibility that the MARFIN program will be funded.

"This program is designed to have a short-term payoff in terms of jobs," Dr. McIlwain emphasized. "It represents a consensus of both industry and the research and management communities in the Gulf concerned with fishery research development needs."

MARFIN emphasizes the importance of sustaining existing fisheries which harvest and process shrimp, menhaden, groundfish, crabs and oysters. Investigation is needed to determine ways to maintain current production levels and to counter increased import competition.

Underutilized resources, according to the report, could provide a basis for continued growth and stability of Gulf seafood industries while offering fishing alternatives to vessels and personnel in marginal and economically stressed fisheries.

Coastal herrings, for example, could contribute an additional 2.2 billion pounds to U.S. landings annually. Considerable interest has evolved concerning export of these fish for human consumption.

Menhaden fisheries could be greatly expanded by production of surimi for direct human consumption, in addition to current processing of fish meal and oil. Other underutilized resources, such as shark and squid, could contribute to future needs if wisely and fully developed.

MARFIN commends $5.5 million over three years in research funding for mariculture, the commercial raising of marine animals such as bait fish and shrimp, sea trout, red drum and Tilapia.

Gulf fisheries have become more interested in mariculture in recent years because of increasing per capita domestic seafood consumption, accelerated foreign mariculture activity and a general consensus that a limit to commercial fishing of traditional species has been or will be reached soon.

MARFIN research units representing over 200 species included shrimp, menhaden, coastal pelagics, reef fish, coastal herrings, ocean pelagics, marine mollusks, crabs and lobsters, bottomfish, estuarine fish, anadromous and catadromous fish, mariculture, marine mammals/endangered species, corals and sponges.

New industry to be promoted by department of agriculture

One of the greatest breakthroughs for Mississippi agriculture is the production of products from muscadine grapes, according to Sam Rushing of The Winery Rushing in Merigold.

As a result of Rushing's interest in grape growing and wine making, he has worked with the Mississippi Department of Agriculture and Commerce and other state and federal agencies in building additional marketable Mississippi agricultural products.

Rushing petitioned the Federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms for the establishment of a viticultural area in northwest Mississippi and small parts of Tennessee and Louisiana. The U.S. government then named the Mississippi Delta as a distinct wine producing area.

The muscadine grapes used for Mississippi Delta wine originated in the southeast part of the United States. Muscadines are comparatively free of diseases since they are native to the South. Rushing says that he has had no problems in growing them.

Promotion of the distinctive muscadine wine was started Oct. 1 when Rushing and his wife, Diane, hosted a celebration at The Winery Rushing in recognition of the "Mississippi Delta Viticultural Area" appellation of origin.

This designation means the Mississippi Delta will be acknowledged as one of the 60 areas in the United States where a certain type of wine is produced. "We are not trying to imitate other wine areas," says Rushing. "We are rather trying to develop our own area."

One of the problems the newly organized industry faces is marketing.

"Once we get the marketing aspect worked out, we can plant more muscadine grapes and promote a distinctive product of Mississippi," according to Rushing.

About 20 tons of muscadines can be grown on one acre of land when cultivated correctly. This is equal to four or five times more fruit when compared with grapes per acre in California, according to Rushing. When marketed profitably they can bring up to $200 per ton or $4,000 per acre on a cash basis.

The potential for muscadines goes further than as a cash crop only. They are unique to the South for wine and jelly making since they can be grown, produced and packaged as a Mississippi agricultural product on the farm. Muscadine products also can help promote the Delta tourism industry.

The fruit also stimulates the economy in several ways. They can be sold directly by the farmer as a fresh fruit. And secondly, muscadines open the door for the development of new products such as wines, juices, jellies and pies.

As the grape industry in Mississippi grows, the potential for newer and better products increases. Muscadine products now are becoming the future Mississippi agricultural products with romantic appeal.
